

The HEIDT of Corruption?

Thanks to her own arrogance and the media, millions of people have learned about the sex offender/smuggler working for the state of Wisconsin as a prison manager.

However, what Wisconsin officials and the media have not reported are Heidt's many other crimes nor of how Wisconsin officials covered up for those violations.

You are being contacted as media groups who reported on Heidt's sex crimes and invited to look at documents of some of her other crimes.

You are welcome to review the many other documents of corruption by Wisconsin officials/agents and how these criminals are replacing/usurping lawful positions.

Racine Correctional Institute supervisor accused of inappropriate relationship with inmate

RACINE, Wis. (CBS 58) -- A Racine Correctional Institute supervisor is accused of an inappropriate relationship with an inmate.

Investigators tell CBS 58 what started as flirting between an inmate and unit supervisor ended in a sexual relationship that went on for several months. Now, that supervisor has been removed from her position, and is facing 41 felony counts.

According to the Racine County Sheriff's Office, the supervisor was identified as 36-year-old Jacqueline M. Heidt.

She has worked for the Department of Corrections for 11 years. She has been at the Racine Correctional Institute since 2017.

"It is my understanding that she actually had two offices within the correctional institute," said Lt. Michael Luell of the Racine County Sheriff's Department.

Investigators allege it is in those offices that the two had sex.

The sheriff's office says investigators interviewed the inmate who said he began a sexual relationship with Heidt in April of 2022. He said the inappropriate relationship would occur in Heidt's office three to four times per week.

"The inmate estimated that they had full sexual intercourse at least 20 times, up to approximately 40 times and that there were other sexual acts that were performed during this relationship," said Lt. Luell.

Lt. Luell says the relationship was discovered when the inmate was hospitalized earlier this month. There, they uncovered a cell phone on him -- something inmates are not allowed to have.

"And he was very forthright that a unit supervisor named Jacqueline Heidt who is at the Racine Correctional Institute and participates in supervising him and correctional staff had provided him with that burner phone," said Lt. Luell.

On the phone...

"It's evidence of pictures, some of which are explicit. There are text messages which are of a relationship in nature," said Lt. Luell.

Lt Luell says Heidt initially denied the accusation - claiming the prisoners were making up stories, but then, they also discovered a cell phone in Heidt's vehicle.

"The investigators confronted her with the items, the images, the messages that were on the phone. At that point her demeanor completely changed. The color drained out of her face and she decided she didn't want to talk anymore. Even though they're an adult, according to the eyes of the law and the law that was duly passed by the legislature they have determined that the inmate doesn't have the legal ability to grant consent to have any type of sexual contact or intercourse," said Luell.

The investigators arrested Heidt, transported her to the Racine County Jail, where she is being held on a cash bail of $1,105,000, for the following charges:

2nd Degree Sexual Assault by Correctional Staff, Wis Stat. § 940.225(2)(h) – 20 counts

Misconduct in Public Office, Wis Stat. § 946.12(2) – 20 counts

Deliver Illegal Articles to Inmate, Wis. Stat. § 302.095(2)(a)1

If found guilty, Heidt could spend the rest of her life behind bars.

Disgraced Prison Supervisor Jacqueline Heidt Was Allegedly Pregnant with Inmate's Child

We stumbled upon the story of a Wisconsin prison supervisor having a sexual relationship with an inmate earlier this week. The situation involving the charged supervisor, Jacqueline Heidt, is pretty involved.

There is a twist and other details in this story that help to explain the 20 counts of sexual assault, misconduct in public office, and the smuggling.

Who Is the Inmate and How Long Were They Involved?

Jacqueline Heidt (37) was involved with Travis Jones (37) between April and August 2022. In 2015, Jones was convicted of two counts of second-degree sexual assault with the use of force and one count of kidnapping. The charges are all Class C felony offenses.

According to the Racine County Eye, he was sentenced to "20 years confinement and 10 years supervision for each of the sexual assault charges consecutive to the five years confinement and five years of supervision on the kidnapping charge."

Jones isn't getting out until 2059, according to the Eye and he'd be on supervision for 25 years after his release. Chances of him getting out were slim.

When officials truly found out about the relationship was almost a week earlier on August 18, 2022. Prior to this, Jones suffered an overdose and received treatment. While questioning the inmate, investigators found his cellphone and a treasure trove of evidence including nudes and text messages between Jones and Heidt.

Disgraced Prison Supervisor Jacqueline Heidt Was Allegedly Pregnant with Inmate's Child

Things would become messier as he was questioned about Heidt being pregnant with his child. He explained that the relationship just happened, they didn't use protection, and he actually received ultrasounds from Heidt.

According to Jones, Heidt initially wanted to keep the child. Sealing the case against Heidt is Jones' description of her body matching her husband's.

The inmate also went into how often they would meet up. As previously mentioned, it was three or four times a week and authorities charged Heidt with 20 counts of second-degree sexual assault by correctional staff and misconduct in public office.

Evidence confirming Heidt's involvement was found after a search warrant on her van turned up the phone that she used in contacting Travis Jones.

Jacqueline Heidt is due for her preliminary hearing on September 21, 2022.
